In the article Acupuncture - A Treatment to Endometriosis and Infertility Laura talks about endometriosis and if it causes infertility, this is a question that has been asked for years now and finally the answer can be a yes.

Endometriosis is known to be an abnormal placing of a uterine tissue outside of the uterus. Normally, it takes effect on women who are aged 16 to 50 and is perceived to be part of the causes for infertility in women. Up to this date, the origins of an endometriosis growth is still uncertain, but believed to b sprung out from different orientations which could be from hormonal imbalances, a problem with the immune system, hereditary or menstruation. Pain coming from a development of endometriosis can be really ravaging and options to alleviate the pain are very limited. With western medicine, the two best options would be hormonal blockage and surgery. The development will subside for a while, but the treatment can only hold I temporarily.

In recent studies, it would be of good help to look into Chinese medicines to curing diseases. In fact, it is even believed to cure endometriosis. Acupuncture as a means of treatment of endometriosis is very effective and at the same time, since the endometriosis is cured it could also help prevent infertility. So does endometriosis cause infertility still stand after the treatment, maybe not?

Whether a woman would believe or not, endometriosis is intertwined with infertility. For one reason as a part of the causes for infertility , the endometriosis is known to scar tissues and adhesions may destruct or be obstructive to the female's fallopian tubes and further prevent it from releasing the eggs from the ovaries. It is also known that the deeper the endometriosis develops', it can heighten the rate of miscarriages and create further hormonal imbalances.
